

ABSTRACT

Chromatography column assembly of the direct heating type, comprising at least a capillary column, at least a tubular structure which envelops the capillary 5 column and is coaxial with it, means to directly heat the column, means to detect the temperature of the column and one or more electrically insulating covering elements, wherein the tubular structure comprises a plurality of tubular meshes each formed of a plurality of filaments woven together (FIG. 3).